

問題 [I]

1. He gave his first official presentation at a competition.
2. It meant that the presentation was an average one.
3. It is to put your hands over the chicken's wings and gently lift it up in the air.
4. No, he didn't.
5. important
6. Because the chicken grew tired.
7. He got it from his mother.
8. He felt exhausted but thrilled.
9. They liked the demonstration with the chicken the most.
10. It captured their attention and woke them up.

問題 [II]

1. 毎晩遅くまでオフィスにとどまり、週末も出勤する従業員。
2. 生産性とは時間内でどれだけ達成したかを言うのであり、人間は機械ではないから、働き続けると効率が下がり、間違いを犯す。
3. 一週 40 時間労働にするという基準。
4. 特定の知的職業に就くと長時間労働が当たり前という慣例。
5. 仕事を失うという恐怖心を常に抱いているから。
6. 一日 8 時間以上働くと、ストレス・高血圧・体に悪い食事につながり、これらが相まって深刻な健康問題を引き起こす。
7. パートナーが夜遅く疲れて帰るのが重荷となり、結婚が破綻する。
8. society
9. 知的労働に集中できる時間には限りがあり、それ以上続けても成果が上がらないから。
10. 身体的のみならず精神的にも、努めてオフィスから離れるようにすること。

問題 [Ⅲ]

This graph shows ten items Americans are generally afraid of, by the order of their percentage points. The most feared three are “Public speaking,” followed by “Heights,” and “Insects, snakes, & other animals,” all surpassing 20%, whereas the least three are “Ghosts,” followed by “Darkness,” and “Zombies,” all going down 10%. I am quite surprised at this result, because roughly one in four Americans is afraid of public speaking. This goes against my stereotype of a typical American. To me, Americans are sociable, friendly, and rather fond of speaking in public. Also interestingly, Americans are as much afraid of heights, even though they are building so many skyscrapers while launching space shuttles one after another.

高松高等予備校